HOSTILE HOMES: AN ANALYSIS ON THE RISE OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AMIDST PANDEMIC

By Akshat Agrawal

3rd Year, B.A. LL.B (Hons.);

School of Law, Christ University, Bangalore

Human beings are challenged every now and then with different forces that are either natural or manmade. The natural disasters and wars have been common though the advent of virus and pandemics have turned out to be catastrophic. The outbreak of Coronavirus (COVID-19) has changed the global scenario posing a significant threat to human life and has already created several casualties. During such challenging times, women and children turn out to be the worst impacted and stand severely vulnerable battling with abuse in their homes. The trauma of domestic violence can be felt when we say that “as a victim of it, one lives in a constant state of alertness & anticipation in one's own house waiting for the next attack to occur.” This is not an act which is just confined to one particular place but it notes down its existence globally, where India is no different. It is truly said that 'The 'domestic' part does not matter. Violence is Violence.’ It is extremely disappointing to comprehend the fact that even in the 21st century; we are tied with the knots of inequality, oppression and discrimination. Imagine being stranded on a piece of island surrounded by water on all the sides where there lies no possibility of escaping and later getting to know about the life threatening peril existing in the island that you need to fight with. This is the exact situation where many women and children of our country are finding themselves in. Amidst the spread of virus globally, several measures have been taken for prevention amongst which 'Social Distancing' has been the primary one. The routine lifestyle for thousands of people has come to standstill where everyone has nestled down in their homes. The lockdown situation has affected all the spheres of work except the job of a Home Maker which on the contrary has seen a substantive rise. The women at our homes have been completely engaged with the household chores taking care of all the family members. The most repeated phrase that has been prevailing at all the places against the measure of social distancing for the virus is “Stay Home, Stay Safe”. But the question that buds up is 'Are women and children safe at home?' Every story is deemed to have two sides. The confinement of people in their houses has unfurled a dark side where it has attracted the rise of patriarchal display of power. The violence against women and children during the pandemic has been one of the areas that have been left unsaid and unaddressed. The violence that women and children face during the outbreak of pandemic can be categorized into two heads (1) violence at home (2) violence due to loss of care givers and parents. In a country like India where stereotypical idea still exist in society, the children and women both are dependent on the male members in the family for various natural and practical reasons. The male members are bread earners of the family and are deemed to have the highest authority in the family.

The current challenging times have made people lost their jobs and has drastically increased the stress level, tension and frustration which has spiked the tendency of violence as well. According to a study, about 75% children in India and across the globe go through physical and mental violence between the ages of 2-4 years. According to the reports of the National Commission for Women (NCW), the country has reported a significant rise in the domestic violence cases during the pandemic.

The closure of work places and schools have also led to rise in cases of child abuse. In such difficult times of pandemic, children are seen in most of the cases to be pushed towards illegal activities like prostitution and child labour. Women in the families are forced to do meagre jobs and turn towards illegal activities. Orphan children are trafficked and sent for purposes of prostitution. The future of older children comes to a standstill as they tend to drop out of schools and colleges. It puts them in mental strain and makes them choose the illegal path like indulgence in substance abuse and violence.

Ray of hope & Way forward

The bleak picture of the petrifying conditions behind the four walls of the house during this lockdown can now be imagined where the victims have suffer the condition as like in a prison. It becomes the duty of each individual and government specifically to act and take various steps to avoid violence against women and children. There is an urgent need for proper enforcement of the act at ground level and to take some concrete steps to tackle the menace. Some of the possible reforms could be:

Recommendations for government :

1. Primarily characterizing the service of reaching out to the victims which including the helplines and the NGOs as 'Essential Services'.
2. To start family tracing programme in which the children that lost their guardians could have family to be taking care of them.
3. Introduction of 'Code Languages' for reporting the issue to prevent from knowledge of the abuser that include signs like a Closed Fist, Red Mark on Hand or some specially attributed code words.
4. Establishment of foster homes that can be used to accommodate the victims away from abusers.

5. A helpline number for the filing the cases of domestic violence and child care should be established.
6. Help institutions expand the horizons of distant learning, different activities, etc. for right utilization of time by children and women.
7. Widespread reach through media and initiation of neighbourhood campaigns which would help to spread awareness and develop support system.

Recommendations for individuals in society

1. Report the acts of violence and say no to violence.
  2. Form groups in locality and extend economic, social and psychological support to fellow being in need.
  3. Act as community of caring people to help each other out and facing challenges.
- It is of utmost importance for the law enforcement agencies as well to understand the gravity of the situation and take steps to tackle the challenge.
- It is a matter of joint onus for the government and as well as the citizens to actively respond to this situation of crisis and take the best possible measures for its curb. Only a quick and efficient plan of action at the ground level with the coordinated efforts of every individual, community and organisation can help to attend and eradicate the problem of domestic violence which has been a shadow pandemic.

COVID-19: INDIA IS STARING AT A WOMEN AND CHILDREN MENTAL HEALTH CRISIS

By Ankita Bhushan

Researcher

Real Estate Regulatory Authority, Bihar

WHO declared the outbreak of the new novel coronavirus disease i.e. Covid-19 to be a Public Health Emergency in January 2020. In India, over 1,754,117 cases and 37,415 confirmed deaths reported to date. Over the last couple of months, India's public landscape with the most prolonged lockdown transformed dramatically. The lockdown was declared on March 24, 2020 that ensured every citizen of India to be confined to home.

Covid-19 has not only affected the physical health of the people but also the mental health. It has caused universal psychosocial impact by causing economic burden, financial losses and mass hysteria including anxiety, depression, and biological effects. Symptoms may include the following: negative self-perception, persistent low, anxious, empty, erratic mood, inability to experience pleasure, changes in appetite and sleep, fatigue, bodily pains and thoughts of self-harm and suicide. The fear of COVID-19 among the public, popularly known as “coronaphobia”, has led to a plethora of psychiatric manifestations across the society. Lot of questions started arising as in what to do?, what not to do?, doubts about what type of mask, what distances to maintain, what surfaces need disinfection with what? These questions gave rise to worry and fear and people started developing a mental disorder due to over thinking and stress. The researcher in this paper will give highlights on the Psychological, Physiological & Mental Health of women & children as they are more vulnerable during this trying time and also solutions and suggestions as how to deal with it.

WOMEN

WHO states that “women's health is inextricably linked to their status in society. It benefits from equality and suffers from discrimination. Today the status and wellbeing of countless millions of women worldwide remains tragically low”. We say home is the safest place for everyone, no, not for everyone. One of the most heart-breaking adverse effects of self-quarantine has been that many women are isolated at home with abusive spouses. Psychological abuse is usually an antecedent of physical and sexual violence. Covid-19 has presented a scenario of increased incidence of family abuse where the male deprives women from their basic needs, forces to have sex, increase in domestic violence, unpaid care and unequal share in domestic responsibilities etc. are leading to chronic distress that women are experiencing. Apart from the aforesaid causes, Covid-19 has led to a plethora of psychiatric manifestations to pregnant ladies. They are getting anxious about the infection to the unborn baby, fear of unavailability of transportation if she goes into labour, mother or husband will be allowed to stay during delivery, postpartum consequences etc. Women who were going out for work before the lockdown are also under stress as they are facing difficulty in working from home and handling household chores together. Women who have a pre-existing mental health problem and are already under psychiatric care are advised to be in contact with their doctor over the phone. It is thus a matter of priority to address these concerns to ensure positive mental health. First and foremost women who are experiencing abuse must speak to someone you trust about your concerns, seek psychological support and also get in touch with 24x7 women help-line numbers. Pregnant women must remember that your mental health is as important as physical health for the adequate growth and development of your baby and for that you must minimize watching negative news, find opportunity to amplify positive stories, stay home and involve in pleasurable activities and stay in touch with your doctor. Most doctors are discouraging women to come to hospital and prefer advice over the phone. Women are trapped in an escalating cycle of tension and are susceptible to experiencing various mental state concerns. Social support, meditation, good diet, love and affection can minimize their sorrow.

CHILDREN

Children and Adolescents have already been at home since the Nation Lockdown was announced. Their regular schedules are disturbed with no clear idea of when they will be reinstated. Children are more prone to various disabilities especially mental disorder during this time. Main causes of the mental disorder are no physical activity, social media usage; long hours of online classes, socio-economic circumstances of the family like parental stress, parent's conflicts, risk of child abuse and exploitation. Few children are already facing with pre-existing mental illnesses. Parents must play a crucial role during this pandemic to save their children by giving them ample of time and by understanding their physical and emotional needs. Create a flexible but consistent daily routine. Be polite with them even if they commit mistakes; make them understand what is right and wrong and try to praise your child for something they have done well. High stress in family because of social isolation, economic hardship and loss of livelihood increase risks of domestic violence and child abuse, including spanking or beating children, or using harsh language. Sexual abuse can happen to any child or adolescent at any time or place, be vigilant and aware. Children spend more of their time online and face the risk of exposure to online sexual abuse and exploitation, cyber bullying and watching news related to Covid-19 also affect the mental health, so make them understand what Covid-19 is and how to deal with it. Several world health agencies including WHO, UNICEF, AA- CAP, IACAPAP, and many others have issued guidelines and factsheets to help parents safe-guard the mental health of their children in these testing times.

COVID-19 pandemic has caused a lot of uncertainty within the lives of Indian citizens, like their global counterparts. COVID-19 pandemic indicated that a major proportion of the population have had a psychological impact during the crisis. The factors that predicted higher impact was on children and women. There is a necessity for considering psychological state issues by the policy makers; while planning interventions to fight the pandemic. Although all the world health agencies and governments are working tirelessly to combat the deadly virus, rather more has to be done. It is very essential for everyone to be strong physically and mentally so that one can take care of one another. Each and every one must follow the dos and don'ts prescribed by the doctors to fight with Covid-19.

THE TIMES OF COVID

By Taniya Banerjee

M.Phil

Jawaharlal Nehru University

The entangled trail of women and children, Covid-19 might not be discriminatory in terms of the biological effects on different genders, but its social and economic impacts are felt differently across class, caste, gender, and age. The advent of the pandemic brought panic among all sections of the society, but the lockdown increased an atmosphere of anxiety, disappointment and lack of freedom among people, mostly women. Moreover, the natural calamities, conflict, and crisis hurl upon us the question of children's well-being, survival and protection. The gendered effect of lockdown could be witnessed in public as well as private space. The erosion of the public and private sphere increased the vulnerabilities of women as well as children. Across all social cleavages, the women were poorly affected, the homeless, the pregnant, single mothers, the widow, teenage girls, women with disabilities, and older women. The lockdown brought in the sense of loss of independence and empowerment, which women experience while they are regarded as economic subjects. The lockdown severely impacted women belonging to the lower class that were employed in the informal sector or worked as daily wage labourers or casual labourers. The additional responsibilities that came upon women due to the closure of schools and a limited source of income found themselves amidst the caregiving work at home. Households, where women were the sole breadwinners, saw an emotional, physical, and mental catastrophe. The society's patriarchal nature deepened during the lockdown as the lack of movement hindered their freedom in realizing their full potential. The domestic violence is the shadow pandemic and the country witnessed an upsurge during the country's lockdown is a reflection of the deeply entrenched hierarchical gender norms in society. The NCW received 257 complaints between 24 March and 1 April 2020 (Economic Times 2020). The numbers are much higher as

99% of sexual assault cases in India go unreported, and the women are 17% more susceptible to getting hit by their husbands. Depending on the kind of industry the women were employed in, the lockdown impacted differently. On the one hand, where few lost their jobs, some had to do work from home, which took away most of their time and was subjected to verbal and physical abuse. A woman spends 353 minutes in a day on household work, 577% more than the 52 minutes spent by men. A study Researchers conducted at North- western University show that in comparison to the regular recession, this pandemic will affect women more significantly than men as more women will lose their jobs. The World Economic Forum recently noted that due to mass school closures, women would bear much responsibility for the child and elderly care. Since women do thrice the amount of unpaid work done by men, this lockdown has exacerbated the burden on women. The Institute for Fiscal Studies and the UCL Institute of Education found that 47% of mothers would either lose their job or quit, and 14 percent were more likely to have been furloughed since the start of the crisis. A study revealed how women would be most affected economically as they are employed in sectors that have shut down – such as restaurants, shops, hotels, and retailers. The road ahead requires a gen- der-inclusive approach of the government in advertising and tackling the lockdown period and further. Few countries such as Spain and Portugal declared protection and assistance for victims of gender-based violence. France financed 20,000 hotel bookings for women seeking refuge from domestic abuse. Argentina, France, Italy, Norway, and Spain adopted Mask-19, a pseudonym for help. Just as we saw Punjab Police asking women to 'put their men to work,' it is necessary that few steps are undertaken for women's safety. With the increased violence on women, children are also susceptible to domestic abuse and violence, which leads to psychological trauma and stress. It becomes essential to identify children at risk and mitigate the risks during and after lockdowns. The nationwide lock- down saw the effects of mass migrant exodus and the unavailability of safe spaces. The street children, missing children, children who had fled their homes are at a higher risk of trafficking, forced begging, and child labour. We need more reliable tracking systems at local levels to keep records of families and children entering and exiting the villages/slums. As the economy has been dwindling, more families will force their children to work as they are the cheapest source of labour. Since movement is restricted, they will mostly be engaged in agricultural fields or household chores. Financial aid to vulnerable families, relaxation of school fees, incentive schemes supporting children's education, especially girls, support to innovative learning opportunities, minimizing losses to income will be able to prevent children from entering the workforce. The double discrimination which a female has to go through exacerbates during this period as the number of child marriages increase, adolescent girls face multiple other problems, like dropping out of school, doing household chores, sibling care, and other activities. The patriarchal structure along with the financial insecurities, safety concerns, and sexual abuse impact girls' future in accessing educational opportunities. Initiatives such as flexible learning opportunities, catch-up courses, and accelerated learning opportunities may help, and so will accurate tracking of school registers to check on girls who have not returned to school. First, we must boost the on-ground machinery and promote civil registration as it works with children, families, and communities. The COVID-19 child protection preparedness plan should be inclusive of gender-sensitive. The plan must incorporate children with disabilities, children from minorities, and marginalized sections. Launching helplines and authorizing funds, making the police force aware, would be the first few steps in sensitizing the unbalanced structure of the society. The long-lasting effect of lock-down will impact women mostly as they had to undo the changes on the economic, political, and social front, which were brought in the society in all these years.

“THE CONSTITUTIONAL CHILD” CONSTITUTIONAL COURT & DIGNITY JURISPRUDENCE ON CHILD IN SOUTH AFRICA

By Sanu Ranjan
B.A.LLB, 5th year
Chanakya National Law University.

John Murungi, in her sublime remarks puts out the Humanity Jurisprudence of South African Constitution by stating that, “Each path of jurisprudence represents an attempt by human beings to tell a story about being human. Unless one discounts the humanity of others, one must admit that one has something in common with all other human beings. What is essential to law is what secures human beings in their being. The pursuit and the preservation of what is human and what is implicated by being human are what, in a particular understanding, is signified by African jurisprudence.” The South African Constitutional Court in M v The State, profoundly evolved the 'rich jurisprudence of child rights', with Sachs J. speaking for the court eloquently observed the Constitutional Rights of Child enshrined under Sec. 28 as,

“Every child has his or her own dignity. If a child is to be constitutionally imagined as an individual with a distinctive personality, and not merely as a miniature adult waiting to reach full size, he or she cannot be treated as a mere extension of his or her parents, umbilically destined to sink or swim with them. The unusually comprehensive and emancipatory character of section 28 presupposes that in our new dispensation the sins and traumas of fathers and mothers should not be visited on their children. Individually and collectively all children have the right to express themselves as independent social beings, to have their own laughter as well as sorrow, to play, imagine and explore in their own way, to themselves get to understand their bodies, minds and emotions, and above all to learn as they grow how they should conduct themselves and make choices in the wide social and moral world of adulthood. And foundational to the enjoyment of the right to childhood is the promotion of the right as far as possible to live in a secure and nurturing environment free from violence, fear, want and avoidable trauma.”

The Constitutional Court of South Africa in The Teddy Bear Clinic for Abused Children v Minister of Justice and Constitutional Development, infused the dignity of child in sec. 10 of the Constitution, as the Court speaking through Khampepe J. observed that, “Section 10 of the Constitution provides that “[e]veryone has inherent dignity and the right to have their dignity respected and protected.” While dignity is a cornerstone of our Constitution, it is not easily defined, at least in legal terms. Suffice it to say that dignity recognises the inherent worth of all individuals (including children) as members of our society, as well as the value of the choices that they make. It comprises the deeply personal understanding we have of ourselves, our worth as individuals and our worth in our material and social context. This Court has found that children's dignity rights are of special importance and are not dependent on the rights of their parents. Nor is the exercise by children of their dignity rights held in abeyance until they reach a certain age.”

The Court further expounded the 'jurisprudential nature of right' and the 'interpretive role of court' with respect to the constitutional enumeration referring to Children in Sec. 28 by observing that,

“The ambit of the provisions is undoubtedly wide. The comprehensive and emphatic language of section 28 indicates that just as law enforcement must always be gender-sensitive, so must it always be child-sensitive; that statutes must be interpreted and the common law developed in a manner which favours protecting and advancing the interests of children; and that courts must function in a manner which at all times shows due respect for children's rights. These considerations reflect in a global way rights, protection and entitlements that are specifically identified and accorded to children by section 28. They are extensive and unmistakable. Section 28(1) provides for a list of enforceable substantive rights that go well beyond anything catered for by the common law and statute in the pre-democratic era.”

Further explaining the “Best Interest of Child” Principle as mentioned in Sec. 28(2) of the Constitution, being 'paramount importance' in consideration of Child Rights observed that,

“Section 28(2) requires that a child's best interests have paramount importance in every matter concerning the child. The plain meaning of the words clearly indicates that the reach of s 28(2) cannot be limited to the rights enumerated in s 28(1) and 28(2) must be interpreted to extend beyond those provisions. It creates a right that is independent of those specified in s 28(1). [Therefore], it will be noted that [it is] a right, and not just a guiding principle. It was with this in mind that this Court in Sonderup referred to section 28(2) as “an expansive guarantee” that a child's best interests will be paramount in every matter concerning the child”

The Court emphasised the duty of state as pares parentis to take care of child in cases of breakdown of family, by observing that,

“No constitutional injunction can in and of itself isolate children from the shocks and perils of harsh family and neighbourhood environments. What the law can do is create conditions to protect children from abuse and maximise opportunities for them to lead productive and happy lives. Thus, even if the State cannot itself repair disrupted family life, it can create positive conditions for repair to take place.”

Therefore, if it were to be seen of a Jurisprudence that serves the 'progressive realization' of Rights of 'Constitutional Child', the true 'Constitutional Homage' must be paid to the South African Jurisprudence which has recognized the 'positive enumeration' in constitution not merely as directive principles' but as 'a guaranteed and enforceable right' of the Children, making it as 'basic norm' of its dignity jurisprudence in regard to the Child & its Childhood, that respect the “inherent worth of Child as a Child itself”.

Exploring hobbies, shades of passions for elite,
Struggling for bread,
my migrant sister still marathoning those miles...
Earthquake, Volcano, Chemical Leakage,
Fire, landslides, floods and breakages.
Flying weeks, staggering days,
Eroded insides, smile pasted face.
Tornado in heart, unaware of future incoming,
Lockdown has been brutal, to one and every being!

From those with a head containing slivers of silver lining,
To the sweet cutie pies with eyes like stars shining,
You, Corona, have given people horrors which were morbid,
You have given us a macabre feel, which we just couldn't forbid!
The contagion-like pandemic, urging loads of sanitizers and masks,
The fabulous frontline workers are great at doing their tasks.
You, Corona, are the one against the world's terrifying spree,
You are the tiny monster against the gigantic world, not letting us free!
At least Earth's pollution-fever and the amount of accidents is less,
All the roads are relaxed, without bewilderment and a mess.
You, Corona, made nations face the challenge with unity,
You made children enjoy their mother's food in their entity!
The scenario is ordering scientists for a vaccine, that we will find,
Better take this into account and keep the warning in your mind.
You, Corona, have tortured us to our hearts' cores,
You made technological developments possible, but still made us bores!
The millions of deaths, with not even a funeral to mourn,
At least nature has a chance, to caress its children and adorn.
You, Corona, have given us an unforgettable season,
You should stop being naughty and your grip must loosen!
Don't get too enthusiastic; humans will succeed,
Better leave us alone, gather your friends and proceed.
You, Corona, have created a gory time as a foe,
You please leave your monstrous hold and go!

IMPACT OF COVID-19 AND LOCKDOWN

By Anmol Kaushik

Class XI Science

Kendriya Vidyalaya, AFS Kumbhirgram

Covid-19 or corona virus disease has emerged as a global pandemic that could not be tamed by most developed nations. It has wiped almost 7 lakh people and infected over 20 million worldwide. The rate of infection is alarmingly high and uncontrolled. USA is worst hit and India is not far behind. Many conspiracy theories point it as Chinese dirty war of realizing its colonial mindset to conquer the world. It's an attempt to conquer the world without bloodshed with a plan concealed as accidental outbreak. The world is irked by alleged involvement of Wuhan virology laboratory under influence of the dragon dark face. Never the less, in a span of less than a month, it covered areas in Europe, especially making Italy a helpless nation which had not enough graveyard to put corpses to rest. Spain, Germany had seen the worst phase. United States and South America joined the list of worst covid-19 affected nation. In Asia, South Korea, India and Pakistan had to give figures that started as ominous sign of Pandemic engulfing the continents. The culprit behind this pandemic was a tiny virus from SARS family and was named corona virus due to crown like receptors on its surface. The RNA virus has low mortality but can be deadly and impacts people with low immunity and leads them to even death. WHO has been releasing measures and data, which contradicted the estimates made by epidemiologist like Dr. Anthony Stephen Fauci, Dr TedrosAdhanom, declared it officially as pandemic? The peril covered the world and it became impossible to think of a solution as hospital beds were filled with Covid-19 affected people and governments had to pump resources to help people. The economy was threatened of deadliest blow ever as it affected workplace and production units. The chain of production and selling was shattered into pieces. The response of nations were uncertain and only desperate container was Lockdown. The streets of Las Vegas had pin drop silence, the Rio restaurants went into silence of graveyards and economies started to crumble. It seemed as a choice between bread and life for many. In India, the data says 12 crore lost their jobs. The schools and other institution were shut as preventive measure.

The lockdown was partially successful in flattening the transmission curve but yet not convincingly ensured eradication of the disease. The whole commune of technologists and medical experts started the daunting task of finding a vaccine. It's going up on war footage but trials need to have time and numbers to deduce something positive.

The Result of Lockdown

Amidst the fast spreading pandemic, Mother earth seemed to rejuvenate its wrinkles and tanning body. The green cover could find new foliage and rivers gained sanctity and clarity. The smoke and dust were rested and people could see, many more stars even in urban areas. Sky got clearer, the noise got low, chaos seemed to take a backseat and people settled back in homes thinking about the deeds and themselves. The luxury was taken away, but with deficient meals, human could find an insight into their own catastrophic act of relentless development without bothering about nature. There were many more birds chirping out, many endangered species of snakes and lizards came fearlessly without being risked of getting hunted.

Never the less, the human endeavors of settling on moon or mars got death blows. The difference between need and greed was realized. However, it opened new avenues for many. The abnormal situation gave birth to new normal where virtual connectivity became key to work. Many corporates ordered work from home, classrooms turned into online mode and e-commerce sites found flood of demands. The tourism ideas were left on margin and all started around internet.

India housed over 30 crores students and possesses moderate internet connectivity. The accessibility to basic educational infrastructure is also skewed. It came as challenge for India to stand up to occasion and get rolling. Schools with infrastructure started to manage online classes, the State run channels on TV like swayamprabha, Kishoremanch etc. started to telecast lectures for various classes. Certain teachers shared audio notes, blogs, and video post on YouTube but still a bigger section was deprived as it became a divide between Digital data and Rations Atta. Above all, these cannot be a substitute for classroom where human values are cherished and discovery is made by learners under experiential guidance of mentors. Those families where there are two or more kids studying and one smartphone, it boils down to childhood days of deciding who will have the online class on a given day by picking fingers or toss of coin. The children are exposed with more blue rays and is perhaps causing anxiety and irritability. This surely needs intervention. A hybrid method has to be adopted with proper blend of technology and work. In these situations some parents are prepared to extend cooperation while for others, it's still an elusive idea. The efforts are coming thick but in pieces with more infrastructural support needed from Government. The impact of Lockdown has both ends creation and destruction. Mankind has to be candid to choose the correct balance. On one hand, the chaos has set the world into state of shock and on other, it has given much needed time to reflect and act for a better tomorrow.

We cannot always end cribbing about the pangs that we received. It also gave us, time to sit quiet, think and improvise. It gave us opportunity to stop ourselves from being potato couch and take on workouts.

The impact has pressed hard to find more creative ways to express. The sharing of bonding, going for creative writing, taking sessions of Yoga, doodling and painting imaginations on paper and empathetically helping environment with less carbon dioxide and more sapling are some soothing impact. Hence, it can be taken as a warning bell to save ourselves from fate that the dinosaurs met on Earth.

History is a powerful and strong proof to show how pandemic have forced humans to break with the past and imagine their world a new. It has also affected the stock market, restaurant, aviation, film, television and sports industries. The Covid-19 or the corona virus has been declared a global pandemic. We are trying to navigate this rapidly evolving situation. It is really essential for us to stay informed about the latest news and updates on the virus and its effect on children, adults and senior citizens. Covid-19 has both short and long lasting term implications for our families, friends and colleagues. It has a great impact on our work goals as well as achievements of our shared vision of a world without violence against women and children. As the virus continues to spread across the world, we are facing many new stresses, including physical and psychological health risks, schools and business closures, movement restrictions and family confinement, isolation and quarantine and economic losses.

Covid-19 pandemic brought an economic war between Russia and Saudi Arabia in March 2020 due to Russia's refusal for reducing oil production in order to keep prices for oil at a moderate level. It resulted in a sheer drop in the oil price. The stock market crash in 2020 is termed as a global stock market crash and this condition would worsen too. The largest economies like US, China, Japan, UK, France, Spain, Italy and Germany have a high-level risk of being unable to pay the debts. This pandemic has greatly impacted the international as well as domestic economies. The economic impact of covid-19 pandemic in India has been largely disruptive.

According to Ministry of Statistics, India's growth in the fourth quarter of Fiscal Year 2020 went down to 3%. Unemployment also rose as many people lost their jobs during lockdown. The government of India announced variety of measures to tackle the situation from food security and extra funds for healthcare and deadline extensions. Covid-19 pandemic has had a significant impact on the aviation industry as well. Due to travel restrictions, there is a reduction in the number of passengers. This may result in bankruptcy of the airlines and they may lay off the employees. The tourism industry has been massively affected by the spread of Coronavirus. The global international tourist activity has decreased by 20-30% as estimated by the United Nations Tourism Organisation. The pandemic affects the food processing industries due to the closing of restaurants, bars and close down of offices, but the online grocery shopping and food ordering has grown substantially. Administration has also ordered for touchless payment options, disinfecting frequently touched surfaces in the restaurants and hotels and giving free masks to the delivery person and other staffs. There is also an impact on the education system due to closing of tuition centers. The educational training has been made online which is affecting the students in different way. The teachers have also become a victim of abusing and fun during the online classes. Moreover the students are also going through mental and physical stress because of staying home for such a long period of time. It seems that some of them have lost interest in studies. The pandemic has made the retailers and shopkeepers worldwide to close their shops. Many of them suffered losses. It also had a substantial impact on the film and television industry. Movie theatres have been closed across the world. Many blockbuster films are having a digital release. Some of them are cancelled or postponed. Across the world sports events have been cancelled or postponed. The Summer Olympics 2020 in Tokyo is rescheduled to 2021. It's like the spectators have no games to watch and players have no play. Only a few countries and territories have continued the spotting matches with proper hygiene and keeping in mind the security of their players. Television industry has also declined. Many actors and actresses had already lost their job. The journalism or media has grown during this pandemic. We are getting information sitting in our homes. But they are also publishing fake news and misinformation. Many women are now trapped at home with their abusers and they are at a high risk of violence as our country's healthcare and law services struggle to respond and bring justice to them. As there is a lockdown, many people are spending their time online with no movement at all, the online forms of violence against girls like harassment, defamation and cyber bullying in the chat rooms, gaming platforms and more are likely to increase. The health workers, sanitisation workers, nurses and doctors are also affected by the coronavirus and are also dying due to this. They are really a Covid-19 warrior in true sense. Covid-19 pandemic has revealed the vulnerability of global systems to protect health, economy and environment. There has been a positive impact on the environment due to the lockdown, there is fear that once people start travelling again, the positive impacts will also disappear. Therefore, we need to take consistent measures to save our environment.

In conclusion, this Covid-19 pandemic is already testing us in ways most of us have never experienced and expected before, providing emotional and economic shocks too. The violence that is emerging now as a dark feature of this pandemic is a mirror and a challenge to our values, ethics, flexibility and humanity. The pandemic is also teaching us many good habits which were being followed earlier by our fore fathers. We must not only survive from the virus, but help each other to overcome this situation. This can only be possible by a shared ambition and global solidarity.

Corona virus disease 2019 (COVID-19) is defined as illness caused by a novel coronavirus now called severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2 which was formerly called 2019-nCoV). It was first distinguished in Wuhan City, Hubei Province, China. It was initially reported to the WHO on December 31, 2019. On March 11, 2020, the WHO declared COVID-19 a global pandemic. There is big loss to places where tourism is only source of income. There are countries like India, Pakistan, Nigeria, Bangladesh and many others which are very much based on tourism.

Positive impact of COVID19 Lockdown on environment and climate.

Quality of air and water, Wildlife and vegetation has been improved. Climatic conditions are good now. A lot of endangered and extinct species are reborn. Pollution has reduced. All I can say that “Earth is healing” because of the COVID19 lockdown. There is so much impact on industrial sector. Factories and industries are closed. There is decrease in productivity and demand of goods. They are facing economic crisis as markets were closed from long time. There is much economic loss to transportation. As most of the places were closed, use of transport decreased. People are still not using public transport. Taxi drivers, bus drivers, rickshaw and auto rickshaw drivers facing problems. They do not have another source of income. There is decrease in employment rate. Lot of people has lost their jobs because of lockdown. “According to ILO chief, global unemployment already stood at around 190 million

.” Labour class is suffering a lot. They don't have money to earn livelihood. Poverty rate has increased. People are dying because of hunger. There is so much impact on the health of people. People are mentally disturbed because of continuously staying at their homes. People are scared of this disease. People are not getting treatment of other diseases because of pandemic. Hospitals are busy with the treatment of COVID19 patients.

Impact on Economy

Global economy has been hit hard by Global pandemic and lockdown. Several businesses have shut down due to this .As per “IMF worldwide economy is required to recoil by more than 3 percent in 2020”. Government sector, transportation, tourism, industrial sector, markets ,share markets, educational sector and many other sectors were closed .All these sectors in some way have negative impact on economy. Corruption has been increased. World bank, RBI and all other banks are facing crisis. They do not have money.

Economy is going down day by day. Countries are trying their best to recover their economic conditions but it will take time. COVID19 and Lockdown has great impact on entire world. People are facing so many problems. Their life has changed completely. Their life is no more the same as before Covid-19. All the sectors are facing crisis whether it's education, economy, tourism, transport, industrial, jobs and others.

There is good impact on environment. Environment conditions have changed in a good way. There is much effect on mental health of people. People have become more concerned about their physical health. Some people are using this time wisely. They are using this time in learning new things and giving time to their families.

This pandemic has changed the world completely. People have become more virtual. Internet productivity has increased the most. There is so much benefit to the technical sector. Now the world is completely different.

WHY NOT TO BE POSITIVE?

By Ojasvi Upadhyay
Choithram School, Indore

Uh! not again this is like the tenth time this news channel is showing the growing no. of covid cases in India' Kiara said as she changed the news channel. Where would I find positivity in this world she said. Suddenly an irritating voice came that was Kiara's sister Lucy "mom, Kiaradidi has again started her chirping. Ask her to sit down quietly" both started to fight but were stopped by their father 'girls don't you know your mother is busy wearing her uniform. She has to go for duty "he said. Then Kiara's mother came and kissed both of her daughters," see you girls" she said as she wore her mask. 'oh!? wow mom, again you are going on your duty you don't have time for us right?'" Kiara said angrily.

Her mother did not say anything and went. Kiara went sadly to her room.

She abstained herself from checking her phone. She sat near the window looking at the red roses and green bushes. Suddenly she heard a beep in her phone she saw a message of a zoom workshop. She just thought that due to this all the stuff going on these days there is a whole lot of negativity all around the world if she could, by any chance just start her own sessions for positiveness and all that stuff yes she could but then she is too young will her parents allow her?

She went to where her dad was sitting and with all her courage she asked her father about this. Her father thought for a second and said "my ambitious daughter that's such a great idea go on tell me if you need any help okay?" she happily went to her room. She opened a notebook and planned all the things. According to her plan she will start by advertising her workshop till 1 week. One week she just spend advertising, organizing things managing calls creating groups. Finally the day came when she allowed imagination to say what she wants!

So she opened her laptop, her father sitting nearby "go on" he said. Let's do it". She joined the meeting where the participants were waiting. There were around 100 people waiting for her. The advertisement did work well but she knew many of them were her relatives also. She took a second to see the age groups of people according to which she had been practising a lot for her speech. She saw that they were mostly sophisticated people some were teenagers and some teenagers were pushed by their parents. Suddenly she saw a person named 'unknown'. She was quite surprised to see the name and then she realized that the person's camera is also off. She took no notice and began the session.

'When you feel like hope is gone, look inside you and be strong and you will finally see the truth-that hero lies in you.' -Mariah Carey “You know why I am conducting today's session because in this time of pandemic everybody is struggling. In these days when everybody is struggling each and everyday whether it is a poor farmer who is not being able to sell his crops or those people who are not able to go out and buy anything; people have also started to call 2020 a bad year but there are still few months left, so lets be positive. Positivity can be a powerful force, especially in difficult times. Today, the world is facing the coronavirus crisis, a pandemic that has changed life of millions of people. In times like these, hope can be a powerful source of reassurance. Why to think negative, when darkness of night surrounds us then the sunshine knocks on the door.

This sunshine must have seen our small joys which we have not seen. It must have witnessed the hustle-bustle of cities which now is not. It must have looked at sad eyes and faces of people hopelessly looking out of the window. It must have listened to people saying that the future is ruined but do you all remember during world war Japan was destroyed, everybody said that Japan will be ruined like this for decades and here is Japan today - one of the most developed countries. During every sorrow during every bad time we think that the future will be bad but how could we think that if our family is with us, if we are together then whats the fear. If we all are together then believe me the world's greatest problem can be solved. With this she suddenly heard clapping and she smiled. “Thank you everybody” she said.

The next day in morning, suddenly her father and sister came to her room and said 'look you are in the newspaper the session was live on You Tube'. 'oh? She took the newspaper and jumped to see her photo. The news headline read the girl who inspired many. After celebrating she asked her father, that who made it live on You Tube. 'I did' a voice came from behind. 'Mom' Kiara said surprisingly ""Mom,u did that""Yes, I joined that session with the name unknown ' 'Oh mom' Kiara started to cry “mom I said many things to you and you did this to me thank you mom”. “Welcome beta” her mom said. Where there is hope and positivity there is a way out kiara, will soon overcome this.

Oh no! people are testing coronavirus positive in an enormous number. Said Rahul was a doctor in a covid-19 hospital. It was night when he was going to meet his family after 2 months! When he reached his society everyone was clapping and cheering him and when he reached home he saw that his whole family was waiting for him to arrive but he can't meet them right now so first he sanitized him- self and then he took a bath and then they were so happy to see each other and then at night his children and Rahul were talking all the night and then Rahul said that now sleep otherwise your mom will be scolding you very much when they saw that it was already 5 am and then at morning when every- one woke up they saw Rahul in the kitchen making spaghetti when they ate it was very delicious when suddenly he just got a call from hospital that it's an emergency 100 people have been tested positive so he told his family and then he ran towards the hospital and then he saw that a patient who was also tested positive then he was doing video call to his children and he said themeveryday that I will come back. Then Rahul got a call from his home that his son is having high fever but he can't go back he can go back after only 2 months when he thought that at any cost I do have to help that patient so that he would be able to go back to his family another day the patient was just on the bed when Rahul came running to him that congratulations you have been tested coronavirus negative and then he was so joy full when he thanked all the doctors and specially Rahul and then he took his phone out and then he did a call at his home and he said that I am coming home right now and then his whole family was elated to hear the news and then when he returned home his son asked him rudely that dad why didn't you came to home when I was suffering from high fever so Rahul said that I was helping a patient who was suffering from coronavirus who had children even smaller than you. When suddenly a doorbell rang when Rahul opened the door he saw that the same person who was the patient in that hospital when Rahul asked him that "why have you came here?" then he told him that I have come here to specially thank you. Rahul asked him that 'how did you even got my address?' told him that when I returned home I realized that I should specially thank you so I called that hospital and I asked them for your address and when they told me the address I wrote it on a paper and then I came to your house.
